Peter Mixon has more than twenty years of experience advising public pension plans and other institutional investors on investments, operations, and dispute resolution. As a member of Nossaman's Public Pensions & Investment Group, he concentrates on trust law, investment transactions and funding issues. Peter has extensive experience advising public boards and committees on fiduciary and governance issues. He is a well-known speaker on public pensions and has testified in state court as an expert on public pension fiduciary standards.

Before joining Nossaman, Peter served as General Counsel for the California Public Employees' Retirement System (CalPERS) for 11 years. In this position, he provided counsel to the Board and Chief Executive Officer on all aspects of investments, operations, strategy, and governance. He advised the Board and staff on all types of investment transactions, including private equity, real estate, venture capital, hedge funds, and public market investments. He advised the Board on a number of investment policy issues, including divestment, ESG investing, delegations, and asset allocation. He also oversaw an outside review of placement agent activities of former officials, resulting in recovery of $215 million in investment fees paid by the system. As part of this review, Peter helped draft California legislation regulating placement agent disclosure requirements and fee limits. He also provided legal advice on the Board's Corporate Governance Program, effectively guiding engagement on majority voting, proxy access, and other governance issues. He served on the New York Stock Exchange Commission On Corporate Governance. He advised the staff on public disclosure laws, including legal rights and responsibilities, and he supervised the defense of several lawsuits brought under the California Public Records Act as well as a comprehensive Board Governance Project, substantially improving the effectiveness, efficiency, and accountability of the Board and staff. Finally, Peter conducted over a dozen legal education workshops for board members, executives, and constituent groups.

Since leaving CalPERS, Peter has continued to represent public pension plans in California and across the country on a variety of specific matters relating to plan administration, retirement benefits, and litigation. His practice has focused on the application of fiduciary duty and other trust law to the funding, benefit and contracting actions and policies of public systems. For California plans, his practice includes advice on the specific governing statutes of the system. Peter also maintains a robust practice of representing plans on investment matters, including investment policies as well as the negotiation of limited partnership, Limited Liability Company, collective investment trust, mutual fund, and similar deals on behalf of municipal and state pension plans. He also has negotiated public market investment management contracts and financial service agreements on behalf of his clients.
