George Joseph has been Nossaman's Managing Partner since 2013. He brings three decades of experience to the position along with a history of leadership within the Firm.

George's practice emphasizes the areas of employment and public agency law. George has extensive experience representing employers in litigation and counseling employers on a wide range of personnel issues. His experience includes discipline and termination procedures, layoffs, harassment and discrimination, severance agreements, wage and hour issues, flexible scheduling arrangements, vacation, sick leave and other benefits, leaves of absence, and employee disabilities.

George also serves as general counsel to public transportation agencies. He advises them on such issues as Brown Act, Public Records Act and political law compliance, public contracting, construction claims and disputes, employment, toll administration and development impact fee programs.

George has regularly appeared at the trial and appellate levels in state and federal courts and before arbitrators and administrative agencies. He is a successful mediator of disputes, having served as a volunteer settlement officer and court-appointed mediator in a wide variety of matters.

George is AV Preeminent[®] Peer Review Rated by Martindale-Hubbell.
